Enghouse completes the acquisition of the Mettoni Group

Markham, Ontario and Reading, UK - April 1, 2010. Enghouse Systems Limited (TSX: ESL), today announced its agreement to acquire the Mettoni Group for a purchase price of approximately $23 million effective today. The Mettoni Group, which includes its subsidiary companies, Arc Solutions, Datapulse and Exxcom, had 2009 annual revenues of approximately $27 million.

Mettoni is a leading provider of unified communication software solutions with operations in North America, Europe, Middle East and Africa, and Asia Pacific.

Through Arc Solutions, Datapulse and Exxcom, the group has over 4,000 customers in the public and private sector, with solutions provided through a network of business partners around the world. Its attendant operator center software is highly regarded for its quality and performance, as well as its advanced integration to presence, contact directory and industry specific applications.

“We are delighted with the acquisition of Mettoni,” stated Stephen Sadler, Chairman and CEO of Enghouse. “This acquisition provides the Company with an excellent opportunity to grow both operationally and geographically, with a powerful combined product and services offering that is unrivalled in our market.”

“This transaction provides huge opportunities for Arc Solutions, Datapulse and Exxcom,” added Iain McKenzie, Chairman of Mettoni. “We look forward to continuing to provide the best solutions and support to our customers and channels across the world, while accelerating our planned growth and gaining access to an extended portfolio and further resources.”
